It is generally believed in Washington that Commander Robert E. Peary, the arctic explorer, who left the United States last July for the arctic circle, has reached the north pole. The experts base their opinion upon the fact that no word has been received from Peary since he left Etah, north Greenland, on Aug. 17, for the dash toward the pole. They declare that if the expedition had failed and Peary had been forced to turn back he would have sent out a courier with some news. If he has been successful in reaching the goal of his ambition it is hardly probable that the world will be apprised of the fact before the latter part of August or September. The present expedition is the best equipped that has ever gone in search of the pole, and arctic explorers everywhere predicted that Peary would meet with success when he left.

SHORT CALENDAR IN POLICE COURT

Judge Andrade had for once an easy time of it there being only nine cases on the Police Court calendar this morning with the usual sprinkling of D. and T's. The following is a summary of the minor cases:

Frank Peterson, who has been twenty-three times previously convicted, was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment for drunkenness.

You Sing Yip, Geo. Williams and McCorrigan were each fined $3 and costs for being found in a state of intoxication last night.

Jose Maldonado, charged with begging, was let go for a week in order that he might try to do better and go to work. In this case two court officials testified against him and a strong case of begging was made out. The Judge, however, taking into consideration that he was a very old man, let him go on a suspended sentence.

The cases against T. C. Blackwell charged with overrunning the speed limit in an automobile, and Jose Gomez De Costa, charged with an affray, were continued to July 20 and July 23 respectively.

KINNEY'S ADDRESS.

directed by gesture, the mob to open in the direction of the Higher Wage Office and those behind to rush the men into the building.

The most damaging point that he brought up was from a statement from Lightfoot himself to the jury at the early period of the trial. In this statement, Lightfoot, showing the spotless peace that reigned over Miauchi's soul and conscience, quoted the Japanese leader as saying to the officers "Come with me to the Higher Wage Association building, we will protect you." Kinney left it to the jury to decide what it was that they were to be protected from after the Japanese had sworn that they had not the slightest hostility towards the men.

Following this he arraigned Miauchi himself, showed that the wily Oriental, instead of attempting to recover Mika, was from the officers by brute force as his companions were trying, attempted to do it by artifice and was thus equally amenable to the law.

Concluding, he went carefully over the identification of the defendants how each had been positively identified as participants in the riot by men who were acquainted with them and in a position to remember them. He proved the squareness of the officers in their identifying testimony in not summoning others, whom they might well have done, but confining themselves to those whom they knew without doubt were guilty.

Lightfoot took copious notes during the address and will make his counter address this afternoon, giving the defendants' side of the case.

"Guilty of insolence, insubordination and contumacy" is the verdict returned by a Catholic ecclesiastical court at Denver against Father J. P. Corrigan, who has had a long controversy with Bishop Matz. The priest is ordered to do penance in a monastery.
